Last Chance Patriots in Action

As we approach Primary Election day on June 5th, Last Chance Patriots urges everyone to choose carefully and select candidates who reflect your values by their actions in life prior to running for office. We must judge people by their actions because what a person does is much more indicative of their values than what they say. It is easy to play to crowds and recite the talking points that the crowd responds positively to; it is easy to make empty promises; it is easy to smile and glad-hand and win over people who attend rallies in support of a candidate. It is much harder to stand strong for principles, values and our Constitution when one sinks into the swamps of Helena and Washington, D.C. How many elected officials can you name in your lifetime who consistently stood by their promises and stood by you, the citizens they represent, and stood strongly and unwaveringly for the Constitution? And how many can you name who collapsed under pressure to vote against what they may have promised or campaigned upon or what represented the values they had espoused during their campaign? The unfortunate fact is that too many politicians, rather than being committed to you are only committed to being re-elected. From the day that they climb on the merry-go-rounds in Helena or D.C., most politicians have their eye on the golden ring to win the next free ride rather than on serving their country, their states, or their constituents. So choose wisely when you select those who will run in November because there has probably never been a mid-term election as important as this one.

Missoula Refugee Update thru May 25, 2018

Missoula welcomed 12 additional refugees during May: 6 from the DRC and 6 from Eritrea. This brings the total number of refugees resettled in Missoula since summer 2016 to 172. So far it has not been possible to find out the number of refugees that actually remain in Missoula, or in Montana for that matter because that data is closely protected by the State Department and by the State of Montana. The fact is that the only way to track the refugees' locations after their first ninety days in the US is by tracking their use of public financial assistance programs and that information is highly protected. We know that some have left the area and some have left the state, seeking to move to areas that can provide better housing and employment opportunities or areas where relatives, friends or simply others from their home country are already settled. From the perspective of the refugees this is quite understandable. From the perspective of the International Rescue Committee it is of no consequence. The IRC has pocketed $3800 per refugee from US government ($4000 less $200 cash they must demonstrate as having spent and $800 of donated goods they must have given) for a total of $653,600 in Missoula! And remember the IRC has no responsibility for the refugees after 90 days! Yet, they still beg for money.

The War on Free Speech in Montana Schools

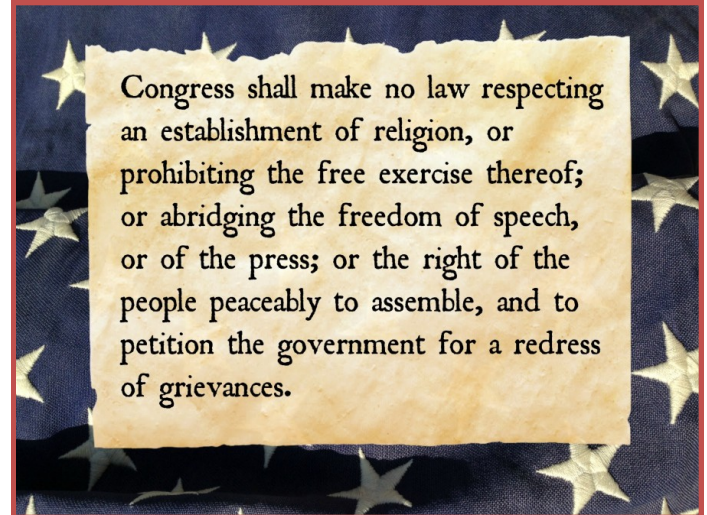

The Helena Independent Record reported that a Capital High School student was removed from class after posting a Snapchat video with a pistol in it. Keep that in mind, the post had a pistol in it. Helena Public Schools Superintendent, Jack Copps, said the district received a report from a student who saw the video and administrators have since reviewed it. Here are the key words from the man in charge: Copps said, "The video does not threaten anyone, but instead asks questions about the merits of gun ownership."

He went on to say, "That video simply questioned from a Second Amendment perspective whether a person was automatically guilty because they owned a firearm," Yet, he is the same Superintendent who led the charge for the young man's suspension. The district and the Helena police are involved in the investigation. Write the Helena Independent and weigh in on this travesty, happening right here under the Big Sky.

Speaking of Big Sky, right down the road a couple of hours in the Peoples Republic of Missoula we have Big Sky High School where a student was suspended and removed for wearing, of all things, a T-shirt with a rebel flag on it. The Missoulian reported that at Big Sky, student Mitchell Ballas said Wednesday he was wearing the sweatshirt to stand up for students' First Amendment rights to freedom of speech after one of his friends was asked not to wear a Confederate flag hat. And then the Left reared its ugly head.

Attorney for the Missoula County Public Schools, Elizabeth Kaleva promptly said, "There are a lot of cases actually where the use of the Confederate flag has been banned at schools and been upheld". Then of course the Missoulian contacted the Montana Human Rights Council who reported that from the middle of 2016 to the end of 2017, the network counted "a tenfold increase in all hate incidents over the same period in previous years," Those reports include displays of the Confederate flag "for provocation." And we're proud to say that the Last Chance Patriots are some of that 'tenfold' increase.

Of course Pravda, eh, the Missoulian wasn't done contacting people yet. They rolled out one Tobin Miller Shearer, Director of African-American Studies at the University of Montana. Director Shearer, who loves to go around Montana singing the praises of Black Lives Matter, said the story about the Confederate flag is not complex.

He said, "The lost cause narrative of white Southerners has attempted to reinterpret the flag as something other than standing for the Confederate drive to maintain a slave society," I would dare say Tobin Miller Shearer missed the rich Confederate history of those settling Montana. Last Chance Gulch, named for the Gold found there was found by two former Confederate soldiers. And Lewis & Clark County, originally named Meagher County, Was renamed when the legislature got upset with the Territorial Governor, Thomas Meagher, because of his treatment of a Confederate veteran in the legislature. Those points are conveniently skipped over in Montana history. Wake up Montanans. Last month it was free speech in Lake County, now in two of our high schools.

The Biggest Gator in Montana's Swamps' Gotta' Go

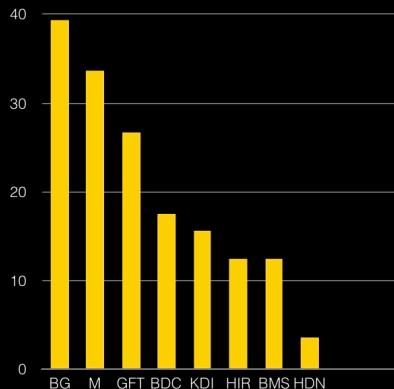

Just like in Washington, there is a Swamp under the Big Sky. The biggest gator in our swamp is none other than Senator Jon Tester. In the infographic below you can see that removing the big guy is going to be like swimming the Missouri River with one arm tied behind your back. But remove him we must if we're going to take back our state and nation. Montana newspapers suffer a serious case of Tester bias.

As you can read elsewhere in this edition, when Big Jon was first elected to the US Senate it came under some very questionable circumstances. His win tipped the balance of the scales in the Senate to the Democrats. And guess who was thrilled? The Communist Party USA. According to a report to the National Committee of the Communist Party USA (June 24, 2006) The report said, "In Montana, State Senator Jon Tester who has a very strong labor, environment and peace record won a landslide victory in the Primary." In the coming editions of The Last Chance Patriot we will explore more interesting findings on Mr. Testers surprise election victory, his subsequent voting record and the tales he tells with the help of the media.

A Book that Matters ... to All Montanans

We featured this book last month as one of our three 'Books That Matter'. We do not know the Author nor have any financial or other interest in the book. However, it is the most important book any Montanan could read in this election year. It is a first hand education by a man who has experienced our government at its worst. Christopher Kortlander is a tried and true Montanan who is still standing and fighting after our government nearly destroyed his life and his livelihood.

Christopher Kortlander, the Author of Arrow to the Heart, is the Owner and Curator for the Custer Battlefield Museum in Garryowen, MT. It is located in the middle of the Crow Agency. He moved to Montana from California, bought the town of Garryowen and rebuilt it and developed the museum. The book is about the many injustices taking place today and one of the most important to Montanans with the upcoming elections this fall is the election of Jon Tester when he ran against Conrad Burns and surprised the nation by winning a very close election. There were rumors and even a lawsuit at the time regarding election fraud on the Crow Agency.

An entire section of his book devoted to his firsthand knowledge of the voter fraud that took place during the election in 2006. It is believed that this type of voter fraud continues to take place in Montana and should be of great concern to us in 2018.

Brian Schweitzer, who was Governor in 2006, was actually recorded during a presentation to a conference of trial lawyers bragging about how he used his power to perpetuate the fraud. Of course, when called out for his statements, he claimed to have been "joking." The details provided in this book are amazing, up to and including Mr. Kortlander's description of checks he cashed for tribal members, drawn on Jon Tester's campaign fund account, that they said were in payment for their votes for Jon Tester.

The book also contains a detailed account of the vendetta that BLM agents and the US Attorney for Montana waged against Mr. Kortlander at his Museum. He returned home one day to find a fully armed SWAT team with military vehicles blocking the entrance to Garryowen. Stephen King couldn't write something as frightening as what happened next. Armed agents stormed his place, interrogated him for hours and for the next five years pursued him, all for the want of an alleged fake 7th Cavalry button that had been planted by the agents themselves!

Mr. Kortlander also includes a chapter about a doctor and his wife in rural Utah who the BLM pursued over allegations of scavenging bones and running a stolen artifacts ring. Again, the BLM had set them up, imbedded a confidential informant in their lives, and relentlessly badgered them, threatened them and took them to court. At one point their home was descended upon by a SWAT team with over 80 members! The doctor eventually took his own life and his family was left behind to suffer further intimidation by the ravenous BLM agents. An incredible story!

This book uses these incidents and others, Randy Weaver, whose wife was shot by federal agents as she held a baby, the Bundys, whose saga still continues, LaVoy Finnicum's death at the hands of federal agents, to explain in great detail how federal agencies have been granted excessive powers under the guise of "law enforcement." You need to read this book and share it with others. Patriots, you know that we live in difficult times, times never before seen since the founding of our country. Your ability to stand against the tyranny that has been gaining momentum begins with your awareness of the real dangers. Reading Arrow to the Heart will open your eyes!

Tidbits from Around the Last Best Place

Blackfoot Tribe Presents to the United Nations: Recently Blackfoot tribal member Loren Birdrattler of Browning presented to a UN panel on sustainable development. He was particularly presenting on sustainable agriculture and how to reach sustainability goals. These days it seems citizens get to go direct to international entities (think John Kerry and Iran) without any sanction of our own government. Heads up!

Hiccup in Great Falls: The proposed Madison Food Park east of Great Falls took a hit last week when "Norsman Consulting Group, of Havre, withdrew from the project after several attempts to resolve an impasse with the client, Friesen Foods, on the strategic direction of the development failed to create a resolution". Representatives of Norsman reported that the decision to withdraw came as a result of irreconcilable differences with their client. Stay tuned.

Our Neighbors to the North: In news out of Canada, seems they are following in Sweden's footsteps and are mysteriously undergoing a growing rape epidemic. While the common denominator would to most observers be the growing number of Islamic immigrants, Canada has another answer. They made it official this month that no longer will they record 'ethnicity' when police are reporting rapes. Problem solved.

Peoples Republic Update: Jesse Ramos., the lone Republican City Councilman, is fighting the good fight. He wants the enormous legal bills the city paid to takeover the water company released to the public. Guess what? The Mayor and City Council are incredulous that he is demanding it. Go Jesse! People from inside tell me those bills are twice what they're saying and just how close is the law firm reaping the rewards of Mayor Engen's government expansion?

Bullock Favors Mass Immigration: If you remember, our Governor Bullock, would be President Bullock, vetoed Senate Bill SB-97, which would have insured that only Montana laws would be applied in Montana courts. He recently came out against having a citizenship question on the coming US census. Why on earth would he oppose Montana laws for Montana courts and asking who is a US citizen? Conclusion: He is a puppet for the far left's assault on Montana. And he is consistent, he also came out and stated he would not send the Montana National Guard for President Trump's protection of our southern border. He wants to change the face of Montana.

Sit Rep in the War on the Free World

RAMADAN REPORT

The holy month for Islam is well under way and it appears to be out pacing last year. In the UK a lady who questioned police about Muslims illegally praying in the streets was arrested for Islamaphobia.

In the Netherlands Muslim gangs broke windows and vandalized a Hindu Temple, which was a target of violence last year.

In Pakistan Muslim gangs attacked and burned a rival Mosque. We learned also that in Indonesia and Palestine a new phenomenon surfaced. Families participating in suicide bombing and dying together.

In Toronto, Canada two beaches were closed when they were found to be spread with broken glass and debris by a new Islamic terrorist group who says they will seed the beaches from Toronto to North Bay 200 miles away.

Closer to home in Lewiston, ME Muslim youth gangs attacked citizens in a local park. A little closer to home in Denver, CO a Muslim man was found in a hotel room with pipe bombs and had written on the mirror 'explosives'.

As Bob Dylan wrote in the Sixties ... the times they are a changing.

CONDOMS , BOOZE & BOY SCOUTS

In a press release this week it was announced that at the Boy Scouts annual Jamboree it will be required that the leaders make condoms available during the event. The Boy Scouts of America are now known as Scouts BSA, and are part of what is known as World Organization of the Scout Movement, or WOSM.

It's also worth noting that exceptions must be made for alcohol consumption during the summer event. And we already heard they are now accepting girls into the boy scouts so it should be quite a Jamboree. Excited to send your son or daughter?

FROM CHINA WITH LOVE

The Chinese state run news organization Global Times reported this week that the new Social Credit System, which tracks peoples behavior in every way including the Internet, was responsible for blocking 11 million flights and 4 million train trips last year.

The system is computer based, everyone has a number and is tracked, they even have facial recognition technology, and everyone gets a score. Don't score high enough? You don't get on that plane or train.

No longer a need for those antiquated reeducation camps anymore when big brother is watching from the cloud. And guess what? To do it like the Chinese requires a 5G network.

FBI INVESTIGATIONS

On May 21, FBI Director Christopher Wray told a Senate Appropriations Committee the following. "We currently have about 1,000 investigations into exactly the kind of people you're describing, covering all 50 states as I'm sitting here right now. And that's not even counting, you know, the al-Qaeda investigations, the traditional ISIS investigations, the domestic terrorism investigations, but just the group you're talking about," he said.

That sure sounds like a lot of investigations to mm. Wouldn't you like to know where those investigations are right here in the Big Sky?
